The screenshot shows the ITInet website interface. At the top, there is a navigation bar with links for ITI.org, ITI Network, Switzerland, My ITI, Home, Global Forum, Document Library, SAC Tool, GOMI, and Photo Album. A search bar with a 'Cluster Search' button is prominently displayed. On the left side, there is a 'Contact Search' section with a 'Find' button and a list of 'Recently Updated Profiles' including Christopher Evans, Dean Morton, Daniel Buser, João Carlos Wanderico, and Adrian Watkinson. Below this is a 'News Feeds' section with several articles. On the right side, there is a 'Latest Global Forum Posts' table with columns for Thread, Category, Posts, and Last Post. Below the table is a 'Latest ITI Announcements' section with 'Entries' and 'Manage Entries' tabs. The announcements include a notice about the public ITI website being available again after technical difficulties and a direct link to the ITInet. At the bottom, there is a section for 'Direct access link / Global Forum threads & subscription' and a 'Share your knowledge in the Global Forum' section.

For individual dialogue on a more personal level, the ITInet offers MyITI. Stay up to date with your social network and refresh personal contacts.

MyITI, your personal domain
